'Boeing Boeing' takes flight this weekend at the WPAC

The play "Boeing Boeing" will be taking flight this weekend at the Wilson Performing Arts Center.

This is the first play directed for the WPAC stage by Kristi Hardwick. The farce, set in the 1960s, centers on an American in Paris who thinks he can have it all and then some, by having three airline hostess fianceés and hiding them all from each other. Eventually, his visiting friend from America even gets in on the plot. However, things don't quite work out as expected.

While "Boeing Boeing" is Hardwick's first time in the director's chair, she's been involved in productions with the WPAC for the past seven years, beginning with a role in "Steel Magnolias." She said she took on the new off-stage role to have a new experience.

"I wanted to learn more. I didn't go to school for this stuff, it was just a hobby. And it's sticking around considering I'm involved in four shows a year for the past seven years, except when we were closed for COVID. If I wasn't on stage, I was helping back stage," Hardwick said.

Hardwick also serves on the Wilson's Theatre Committee, which determines what shows the WPAC will do each year. Directing "Boeing Boeing," was an opportunity for Hardwick to help fill a void.

"We're always looking for more volunteers and people to learn. We're willing to teach people, and we knew we needed more directors for the Wilson productions," commented Hardwick. "Becca Jackson-York recently taught a directors master class that I took along with my mom to learn the ins and outs, and we also sat down for a day with Laura Laprell, who has been directing for years, and she said she was going to give us all the tips that she knew, that she wished she herself had known when she started directing.'

"Boeing Boeing" is the first play Hardwick is directing for the WPAC stage, and said the time period of the show was a big draw in leading her to choose to direct it.

"I loved the era and the retro feel about it. When I first heard of it and found out it was about a guy with three fianceés, I wasn't sure about it. But after learning he spends the entire time freaking out because all three end up there at the same time and he's trying to hide them from each other, that's when I realized the show would be hilarious and I decided to choose it," explained Hardwick. "It's been fun learning all the ins and outs and finding our own voices in directing people, and I also told my cast that this was my first show."

Another benefit to the choice was the fact that it has a smaller core cast, and one set.

"We don't have to do a bunch of set changes, and there's six people in the cast, and ironically, when I did "Steel Magnolias," there were six actors and we also had a first-time director. I had an amazing experience with that cast and having that director, and so this spoke to me, because it was the same size of the cast," explained Hardwick. "I even have two people in my cast that are pretty new to acting. One has never been in any shows before, and she's my favorite character. The other has been in shows, but as an ensemble; she's never had a speaking role before. It's so amazing to see her character come to life every time she comes onstage."

Having the experience being directed by others over the years, Hardwick said, has allowed her to be a director that can listen to

"They're learning who they are. They're making up in their heads their own back stories beyond what the script tells them, so I told them in advance if they felt their character should do something, or feel something, I want to know, because that's how we're going to get the best shows, by bringing all of our ideas together," Hardwick said.

When it comes to directing another show, Hardwick said there are several things she's learned from this experience that she'll apply in the future.

"I think it's important to communicate and be open with everyone. We usually start every rehearsal with a truth about the day, and it can be about anything. That's helped us really bond together a lot faster. Getting that friendship and camaraderie is important, because then we

Council picks Vanderholm as new Red Oak City Clerk

Nick Johansen
The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak City Council has unanimously selected a new city clerk.

At the regular meeting Feb. 6, the council heard a recommendation from the City of Red Oak hiring committee and Mayor Shawnna Silvius to hire Christie Vanderholm as Red Oak City Clerk.

Longtime city clerk Mary Bolton retired from the post at the beginning of the year. Vanderholm has worked for the City of Red Oak for more than eight years.

Red Oak Mayor Shawnna Silvius praised Vanderholm, saying she conducted three interviews for the position, which went very well.

"I've watched her blossom the last month and a half. She's taken a lot of responsibilities and she has handled it very well. I'm very glad she was interested in the position," Silvius said.

Councilman Brian Bills, who served on the hiring committee, also praised Vanderholm.

"We interviewed some other highly-qualified people, and Vanderholm rose to the top," commented Bills. "I thank you for your continued diligence."

Following her selection, the council unanimously approved a resolution setting Vanderholm's salary at $52,000 annually, and her starting date of Feb. 6.

Vanderholm said she was excited for the new role, but knew it would be a lot of work

"Until we get someone for my present job as accounts payable/accounts receivable, I'll be doing both. When we hire my replacement, I have to train that person," said Vanderholm. "I also want to learn about the budget, because that's part of my new job as well. I knew going in that this was going to be a lot of work, but I can handle it, and I have a lot of people who give me a lot of support. If I don't know something, I ask questions until I get the answer."

The council also discussed a resolution setting City of Red Oak employee wage adjustments. Silvius said that after attending budget meetings, and meeting with Vacanti and other staff, she felt there was an immediate need for adjustments to five positions, with a potential increase for more positions.

"There are other positions that warrant increases, but in speaking with these individuals, they understand that we will address this issue further into the year, once we've identified the budget ending balance and potential financial sources," explained Silvius.

In the summer of 2022, Silvius said she requested several compensation comparison reports for similar size communities with populations between 5,000-9,000. One report was conducted professionally by Hilton Consulting in 2019.

"That report compared 13 cities. Another report was compiled for fiscal year 2021-22, gathering information from 33 cities. Each report compares wages and salaries based on job titles, including levels of certification required, and tenure," Silvius stated.

The current salary structure for each superintendent/director was set at the same amount: $65,812. Silvius said that amount was regardless of job tasks, responsibilities,

Area lawmakers hold legislative briefing

Montgomery County's first legislative coffee of the year was held at the Montgomery County Family YMCA Feb. 4.

Attendees heard comments from new county representatives Sen. Tom Shipley of Nodaway, who is beginning his ninth year in the legislature, and Rep. Tom Moore of Griswold, who is beginning his eight year in the legislature. The lawmakers replaced Sen. Mark Costello, and Rep. David Sieck and Rep. Cecil Dolecheck in representing Montgomery County due to redistricting.

At the Iowa House of Representatives, Moore said one of the constitutional amendments he's working on would change the house of representatives to four-year terms, referencing the fact that Shipley has only had three elections to run for office, while Moore has won five.

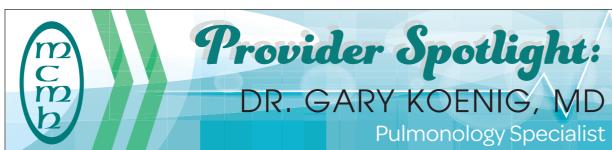

"We're just starting the conversation. I think it's an interesting one to have, and I understand the positives and the negatives. But when we look at politics, and the time and money spent on elections, maybe it's time to do things a little differently. It's just food for thought" Moore explained

Ramsey updates supervisors on a technology park in Stanton

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

Efforts to complete construction on a technology park on the northeast edge of Stanton have taken another step forward.

The Montgomery County Board of Supervisors held a public hearing on issuing a subdivision plat for the Stanton Technology Park Subdivision at its meeting Jan. 31.

Plans for the park were initially sparked by the popularity of the Stanton Resource Center (SRC), and the constant waiting list. Members of the SRC board started working on plans for expanding and renovating the current facility. However, the cost was estimated at more than $3 million and it was met with some resistance, somewhat putting the plan on hold.

And then COVID hit, which forced SRC board members to look further at its plans for the future. This included a facility that didn't cost as much and one that was pandemic friendly, leading them into the direction of building a new facility at a new location.

The Stanton Industrial Foundation has owned the more than 20 acres right to the north of the current daycare for many years as a way to protect the entrance to the community, as well as look for opportunities as what to develop on that land. Officials reached out to them to see if they'd have an interest in selling a lot where a daycare could be constructed. They were, and discussions started. With additional people being brought into the mix, talks soon developed into creating a master plan for the entire 20+ acres, including the infrastructure (water, sewer, fiber optics and roads) needed for the daycare. Later, the boards came to an agreement to have the area developed into a technology park.

Stanton Community Development Director Jenna Ramsey and members of the SRC Board and Stanton Area Industrial Foundation were present at the supervisors meeting. Ramsey said the SRC would be the first business in the technology park.

"The location on Highway 34 offers easy access, and is approximately 40 miles to I-29 and I-80. The park can be developed in full or subdivided to meet the developer's needs. The park will be served with robust, reliable, and redundant fiber optic symmetrical broadband service through Farmers Mutual Telephone Company, which will accommodate business heavily reliant on technology and connectivity," Ramsay said.

While a specific timeline has not been settled, Ramsey said work is already visible at the site.

"Currently, if anyone has driven by, they've seen the dirt work, and that is the start of construction on it. The first focus is getting the daycare complete. Bids are set to go out in the spring, with work to begin this summer. We are also working on applying for some grants for the road that will go up to the cemetery and the technology park. The total project will take up to three to five years," Ramsey explained.

Ramsay further added they have put out feelers to draw interested parties to the location to build.

"We have been listed on a statewide network looking to attract businesses. We also are working with the Iowa Area Development Group. Recently, we were given a Ripple Effect Award in the amount of $8,500 for a 3D model to help us with some renderings and 3D capabilities to advertise even more," stated Ramsey.

Zoning administrator Barry Byers said the Montgomery County Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously approved a recommendation to issue a subdivision plat for the project at its own meeting, and there had been no negative oral or written comments. Also, the zoning would remain the same for now.

"It's zoned for agricultural, and will remain that way for now, as schools are allowed in agricultural districts. It won't have to be rezoned until lots are sold for development, at which point it will likely move to commercial zoning," Byers advised.

No oral or written comments were received at the public hearing. The supervisors approved the first reading issuing a subdivision plat for the Stanton Technology Park Subdivision, and waived the second and third readings.

The supervisors also approved a 28-E agreement between the Iowa Department of Transportation and Montgomery County for issuance of driver's

City council hears update from Vacanti on 2023-24 budget process

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak City Council met in special session on Jan. 30.

City administrator Al Vacanti also gave an update on the work being done for the city's 2023-24 budget. Vacanti said Red Oak's citizens can be confident in the leadership of the elected body, and the members serving as department heads.

"Preparation of the budget remains a work in progress, but we're reaching a stage of more comfort and understanding of the budget sheets, the state process, and the state forms, and I'm imputting data into those forms," commented Vacanti.

Vacanti also advised the council that a total of 10 applications had been received for the Red Oak City Clerk position. Vacanti said he was willing to help facilitate interviews, and develop questions to ask the applicants.

"I will create a series of questions and try to create a scoring matrix so each candidate is being asked the same questions," Vacanti stated. "I don't have anything specific to say about them, and this is your hire.

Two applications had been received for the city administrator's position. Vacanti told the council that he had received one response from a search firm, and the firm stated they could begin a search process for the city for potential candidates on March 15.

The council also briefly discussed extending Vacanti's contract past the current period which ends March 1. Vacanti said he would be open to

"I'll be very honest. I absolutely love working here with everyone. It's been a great experience so far, and I'm very appreciative of everyone for standard, and it would be modified further upon being supportive. I've really enjoyed working with the people in the office, and the department heads, and I would be very open to doing it for a longer period," Vacanti advised.

No formal action was taken on extending Vacanti's contract.

Also on the agenda was approval of the purchase of a new truck for the Red Oak Street Department. Superintendent Chris Baird said they had sought quotes from several area dealers before settling on a 2023 Ford F-350 Super Duty, at a cost of $51,325 from Hawkeye Ford.

"The truck we've decided to go with will be available today to pick up if the council approves the request," Baird said.

Councilperson Brian Bills asked if Baird was satisfied with the equipment the truck came with. Baird said he was pleased with everything that was ownership.

"We're going to put a snow plow on it. I've got prices for a new plow, and it's a sound truck so it should be able to support it. By the time you put the flashing lights and everything else on it, it will probably cost an additional $10,000," commented

The vehicle will replace an existing 2002 truck owned by the street department. That truck will be moved to the cemetery for use by cemetery employees.

The council approved the purchase of the new truck, at a cost of $51,325.

The council also approved setting Feb. 20 as the date for a public hearing regarding setting the maximum property tax dollars and maximum levy for the City of Red Oak for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2024.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN...?

Archived from 2017, 2012, 1997, and 1972 editions of The Red Oak Express

5 Years Ago

After nearly 20 years as a Southwest Iowa superintendent, Dr. Chris Herrick decided it was time to move on. Herrick spent 18 years as the superintendent at Fremont-Mills and an additional five years as a shared superintendent with the Stanton district. Herrick made it clear he was not resigning to take a superintendent's position with another district and was simply resigning as he was eligible for IPERS after the end of the school year. Herrick expressed an interest in continuing a job in education but was uncertain what that position would be.

The Red Oak Tiger girls basketball team moved to a 17-2 season after a 62-21 win over Fremont-Mills. Sierra Athen led with a double-double of 15 points and 13 rebounds. Sophie Walker notched 12 points.

The Red Oak Kiwanis Club was celebrating 15 years of donating helmets to area third graders, thanks primarily to the only remaining Kiwanis charter member and bicycle enthusiast Wayne Donohue. The program was started in 1998. Each year, the Kiwanis Club raised around $1,000 to purchase helmets. The findraider for 2012 was a pancake feed at Inman Primary. Donuhue regularly provided a safety demonstration with a watermelon, showing it undamaged after he dropped the helmet with the watermelon inside. The road to the state tournament came up a lot faster than expected for the Red Oak girls basketball team. The Tigers returned to the championship for the first time in 90 years after a 49-38 win over Adel-DeDoto-Minburn.

With the ball in their court, the Swanson family, Bruce, Mark, and R. John, were pursuing the rescue of their building at 213 Coolbaugh St. Bruce reported that the family had retained a structural engineer to inspect the building and draft a detailed plan to return it to a safe condition. The demolition of 215 Coolbaugh resulted in a shared party wall being damaged during the process, and 213 Coolbaugh needed immediate shoring.

The Red Oak Tiger prep girls varsity basketball squad had a six game win streak, the highest since 1989-90. The team took the No. 5 slot in Council Bluffs Daily Nonpareil rankings.

The Red Lion Steakhouse had a 10 oz. New York Strip special for $8.95 for Valentine's Day.

Guest conductors Thomas Slattery of Coe College in Cedar Rapids and Merrill Perry of Mount Ayr Community Schools worked with 254 band students from 83 junior and senior high schools in Southwest Iowa during the fifth annual Honor Band Festival held in Red Oak in 1972. The finale of the event was a concert at the Red Oak Community High School auditorium A total of 127 of the 254 participants were selected for the concert.

Kathy Haley's 33 points carried the scoring load for the Villisca Jayettes' 46-24 Tall Corn Conference win over Corning. The win moved the Jayettes to a six game win streak.

Polyester, wool, and wool blend fabrics were 79 cents to $2.99 per yard at Connor's in Red Oak.

Pat Shipley weighs in on proposed changes to SNAP program

■ are targeting significant changes SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program), Medicaid, and other public assistance programs. The proposals would restrict SNAP participants' ability to make food choices and increase hunger and food insecurity in Iowa. The legislators think they should cut back on "abuse" of the program and those who might have access to it. After attending Legislative Forums in Clarinda and Shenandoah last weekend, it's clear that legislators who serve on the Health and Human Services Committee didn't have a clear idea of the implications of changes that were being proposed.

Let's look at this from a faith-

The Iowa House and Senate based perspective. I grew up in pected illness, going through a income levels. The application aren't new and may be limping the church and remain an active Presbyterian. There were basic beliefs taught during Sunday School and confirmation. We were taught to "do unto others as we would have done to us" and that kindness mattered. We were taught "judge not, lest you be judged" and "feed those who are hungry and help provide for those who are in need." I think there are some pretty clear messages in Matthew 25.

Mom would say that "God helps those who help themselves." True. However, many of us can think of a time when our families struggled to make ends meet and friends, family, and even public assistance might have helped because of a run of bad luck or situations. An unexdivorce, loss of a job and no prospects in sight can cripple or drain finances. "If it weren't for bad luck, we would have no luck at all" would describe it. If we haven't experienced it, we know people who have.

Legislation has proposed restrictions on SNAP purchases. Over 60% of SNAP participants report the affordability of healthy foods as a roadblock to a healthy diet through the month. Fresh fruits, vegetables, eggs, milk and meat are expensive and should be allowed.

According to state statistics, the average per person monthly SNAP allocation is maybe a little over $150. A person or family must be recommended and qualify for SNAP based on process isn't simple. The public ignores the root causes of food insecurity which include low wages, limited full-time jobs, lack of access to nutritious food, child care costs, housing, health care, transportation and other basic essentials.

The state legislators want to set an asset limit for SNAP that includes owning just one car per family. How would that work? Living in rural Iowa with one car is next to impossible. We drive distances for jobs and parents may not work in the same town or the same shifts. mass transit systems to transport us to work, buy groceries, or attend school events. Cars along with worn tires, sagging exhaust pipes, and bent fenders. In rural Iowa a car is the difference between being employed or not. Asset limits discourage people from saving for emergencies and keep Iowans stuck in poverty, not help them out. It's hard to "pull yourself up by your bootstraps" if you have minimal financial assets to help when there are emergencies or limited access to car ownership.

The legislature is proposing monthly and quarterly eligibility verification checks for SNAP and Medicaid. This idea Students work to help out the has been tried in other states family finances. We don't have and cost more than it saved. Increased verification required hiring more administrators and added bureaucracy. Neither increases effectiveness and just adds another unnecessary hoop.

SNAP is used by people of all ages. It isn't about people refusing to work. It's used by the elderly with limited resources, the single parent who is trying to work and feed their children, those unemployed through no fault of their own, and those who can't work due to personal illness or caring for a family member.

Judge not lest you be judged, it's only by grace that we may not have used SNAP at some point in our lives. Mom said, "It's better to have food than pay doctor bills." As usual, Mom was right.

THE TIME CAPSULE | ROY MARSHALL

Rent-a-Chick

Nearly 20 years have passed since we first hosted a reunion of wife's family. Among those attending from the Omaha-metro area were Bill, Colleen, and their dear little Cari, then 6 years old.

Wife had a dozen pullets; docile birds just starting to lay. Cari was fascinated, especially when she found a treasure. She insisted she was keeping the egg. Then she said she was keeping the chicken. Colleen made a video of Cari chasing chickens and said a chicken would be wonderful.

Bill thought otherwise. Bill said Cari would lose interest and he'd have to deal with the chicken. Cari threw a fit and went to the car. Colleen went to comfort her.

During pie and ice cream Bill made an offer. Eggs were then 50 cents a dozen. He'd pay a deposit on a chicken and the going rate for eggs laid. When Cari started neglecting chores he'd return the chicken and we'd refund his deposit.

Wife thought a minute, said two chickens would get along better than one. The deal was done — and a fine deal it was.

All parties benefitted. Cari learned something of responsibility and the food chain. Bill's family had deluxe brown eggs for ordinary white egg prices. My wife was selling eggs from chickens she didn't hens and we've got an ocean view in Belize.) have to feed. Bill's wife found two living beings been handed an idea that should have led to wealth. as two eggs each day. You'll connect with reality the Adopt-A-Chicken stage.

Bill called last Sunday by washing poop from the shell, spend pleasant to remind me that I could evenings relaxing on the deck to watch chickens now be collecting $6.29 a chase bugs across the lawn, do high-fives as your dozen, although if I had birds dash into traffic, laugh as they obliterate the value-added creativity flower beds and leave enormous, runny blobs on

With Rent-A-Chick comes the primal thrill of raking in a lor more. Bill late-night combat with hordes of racoons trying to told what he knew, after rip the roof from a flimsy rental coop.

> But wait — there's more. Rent-A-Chicken also offers Rent-A-Hatch.

With this $275 package you get a seven-egg "Homestead Phil" left IT incubator with eggs and another instruction manual. After your eggs have hatched, a Rent-A-Chick representative will drop by to pick up the incubator and chicks — if any. At that point you have the option of the standard six-month rental ($665), enabling you and your family to experience chicks through the stinky, messy stage.

The only way to know how this will work for you is to chose a rental package and try, and apparently people all over North America are doing just that.

I consider the success of Homestead Jenn and Homestead Phil and think of what might have been. I failed to seize an opportunity. The Rent-A-Chicken train is down the tracks. Ducks we could try, or turkeys, and milk goats might work with select families, but I suspect chickens were the low-hanging fruit on this tree and Belize is probably not going to happen.

Even so, I've emailed Homestead Jenn and asked what it would take to lock up the southwest Iowa franchise. I have chickens ready to go. Watch

Planning and zoning moves to 5 members

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The Montgomery County Board of Supervisors is reducing the number of planning and zoning commission members from six to

The commission is currently made up of Barb Allen, Bryant Amos, Bill Jacobs, Naomi McCunn, and Randy Pendleton. The commission's sixth member, Vicki Rossander, resigned from the board due to a move to another city.

At the regular Montgomery County Board of Supervisors meeting on Jan. 31, Rossander, who owns property in Stanton, expressed concerns over the county declining to appoint someone to fill her vacancy.

"It is certainly disappointing to me to learn that the county has decided not to fill my vacancy on the planning and zoning commission. I have asked several times over the past several weeks who made the decision not to fill the vacancy, as well as when the decision was made," Rossander said.

Rossander felt the planning and zoning commission was one of the most important entities the county had.

"Just in the last year, the commission has written a solar ordinance, a pipeline ordinance, and is now working on updating its wind ordinance. It's vitally important the planning and zoning commission have a full set of commissioners. If the supervisors has chosen to reduce the number of commissioners, the public should be made aware of that fact, as well as the reason for the decision," commented Rossander.

Rossander felt it was unfortunate the decision was made without transparency and without explanation to the public.

"I am aware of two individuals who were planning on submitting an application to fill my vacancy, so saying no one wants the position would be inaccurate. Not filling the vacancy was not discussed by the planning and zoning committee, and as far as I know, it was never discussed at a board of supervisors meeting," Rossander stated.

Supervisors Chairman Mike Olson said the decision not to fill Rossander's vacancy was part of an effort to reduce the planning and zoning board to five members.

"We have five member boards across the county. We needed a total number on the board of five or seven members, and we decided a couple of years ago that getting five members was difficult, let alone seven. The last time we sought members for the board, there were four current members, and we had two applicants, Vicki Rossander and Naomi McCunn," Olson said. "We ended up putting both on the board, with McCunn intended to be an alternate, but she became a regular board member, and so for the past several years we went ahead and kept it at six members. But we can't operate long term with a six member board, because theoretically, we could end up with a tie vote. Now that Vicki Rossander is resigning, McCunn can officially become the commission's fifth member, and we can keep the total number on that board to five members, and prevent the possibility of the tie vote we'd get with an even number of board members. We want an odd number board."

Olson further explained that if Rossander's resignation had dropped the total member number to four members, applications would have been reviewed by the planning and zoning board, and an appointment would have been made.

Also, on Jan. 30, the planning and zoning commission approved passage of an updated ordinance in regards to the Summit Carbon Pipeline project. The meeting was routine, and no public comment was made during the meeting.

Rural Red Oak resident Jan Norris said she was pleased that the commission had passed the new ordinance.

"I thank the supervisors for engaging outside council to assist with moving the county through this process. I encourage the board to perform the necessary three public hearings, and ask that you ultimately adopt the ordinance," Norris said. "This ordinance has been carefully thought out, and many other counties are doing something similar. Resigning zoning commissioner Vicki Rossander has been a driving force on that board, and she deserves our gratitude."

Norris also stated that no one wants the county's economy to suffer, and a good portion of her own income came from agricul-

"Please consider if losing ethanol plants without this pipeline is actually true. Ask for proof. SIRE in Council Bluffs is not participating. In fact, 15% of all ethanol produced in Iowa has chosen not to sign on with the pipelines," commented Norris. "There are plenty of other viable options for CO₂, but Summit doesn't want you to know that. Just last week Ethanol Producer Magazine profiled a company called Carbon Sink that will produce methanol for ocean freighters and will build facilities at at least 10 Midwest ethanol plants, providing genuine long term local jobs without damage to our land."

Norris also stated Iowa Agribusiness Radio reported the Department of Energy has announced $118 million in funding to expand U.S. biofuel production, which the CEO of Growth Energy says will open many new markets. Even the president says there will be no achieving the goal of net zero by 2050 without biofuels.

Norris urged the supervisors to challenge what they were hearing, not just accept Summit's talking points, and that ethanol would not go away without the pipeline.

Horgdal sentenced to 84 months in prison

Garret Allen Horgdal, 39, of Henderson, was sentenced on Tuesday, Jan. 31, to 84 months in prison following his plea of guilty to being a prohibited person in possession of a firearm. After he is released from prison, Horgdal will serve three years of supervised

On March 8, a Montgomery County Sheriff's deputy stopped Horgdal and found him in possession of three loaded firearms. Horgdal was prohibited from possessing any firearms because of his prior felony convictions and his drug use.

United States Attorney Richard D. Westphal of the Southern District of Iowa made the announcement. The Montgomery County Sheriff's Department, Mills County Sheriff's Department, and Iowa

Division of Narcotics Enforcement investigated the case.

This case is part of Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN), a program bringing together all levels of law enforcement and the communities they serve to reduce violent crime and gun violence and to make neighborhoods safer for everyone. In May 2021, the Department of Justice launched a violent crime reduction strategy strengthening PSN based on these core principles: fostering trust and legitimacy in our communities, supporting community-based organizations that help prevent violence from occurring in the first place, setting focused and strategic enforcement priorities, and measuring the results.

SWITCH launches pilot program for its first student

The initial programming at Southwest Iowa Technical Career Hub (SWITCH) is underway with an Authentic Learning Services pilot program through a partnership with East Mills Community School District, Green Hills Area Education Agency (AEA), Iowa Authentic Learning Network and SWITCH's first student.

Jack Sayers is participating in the Iowa Legislative Page program at the Iowa capitol, where he is serving as a page for the House of Representatives Majority Leader Windschitl.

Jack started working with SWITCH in December 2022 to prepare for the spring 2023 semester and 90th General Assembly.

SWITCH Director and Career Coach Kattie Lewis said, "We are pleased to launch the first pilot program at SWITCH and we are thrilled to work and support Jack with his education while he is engaged in the legislative session this semester. Jack was instrumental in supporting the 2021 East Mills K-12 bond issue that started conversations to create a regional career and technical education (CTE) center now known as SWITCH." Lewis will serve as Sayer's career coach and liaison while he is working at the Iowa capitol during the current legislative session.

Jack, the son of Lindsey Sayers and Shane Sayers, and a junior at EM said, "The professional relationship that has been established between myself as a page in the Iowa House and the East Mills Community School District is beneficial to our three parties and more importantly, we believe that all Southwest Iowans can gain from our work. When I first heard of the idea for this program I knew that I wanted to make it happen. While working on the East Mills Community School District's $22 million bond in 2021, I learned the benefits SWITCH will bring to our communities. If we truly want to fix our labor shortage and revitalize our small towns, we as Iowans must invest in vocational education. I am honored to be the first student of SWITCH which is intended to do just that. I am also looking forward to building a relationship between the program and the Iowa Legislature to grow the vision that community leaders have established. Kattie, myself, Mr. Scott, Ms. Miller, and Mr. Heinold are working together to create competency based learning in the East Mills in the Iowa Legislature Page Community School District, which will prove to be an asset towards students in our area who will benefit from a vocational style education. I truly believe that we have begun to lead a program that will benefit the economy, education, and workforce of our region while showing state government officials why Southwest Iowa matters and what we are truly capable of."

Stephanie Lane, Green Hills AEA, added, "Authentic Learning creates opportunities for students to make connections between current coursework while exploring careers that interest them. This type of learning results in students receiving hands-on projects producing deliverables for businesses. The objective is for students to apply what they have learned through these experiences while creating a deeper connection to their community. Additionally, communities and businesses have a unique opportunity to preview and help shape their future workforce.'

This semester, Jack will be creating presentations for the U.S. Government students detailing his experiences. This authentic learning opportunity is one that cannot be replicated in the classroom, so he will be working with Mr. Scott and Kattie Lewis on how to best mesh EM's educational requirements with his real-world adventure to assist Jack in his current and future endeavors. Chase Heinold, EM English teacher, stated, "I am very excitof Representatives, SWITCH ed to have Jack Sayers participating and representing the East Mills school district in the Iowa Legislature Page Program. This program provides young people the opportunity to not only see the day-to-day workings of what goes on with our state legislature but also allows them to be a part of it in a real meaningful way. With this experience comes a responsibility to share with their classmates and community the issues most discussed, and also bring to light issues that still warrant more attention for the betterment of our community and our state. None of this could be possible without the partnership between East Mills and SWITCH, ensuring that our students serving in the Iowa Legislature Page Program still satisfy their academic requirements through the East Mills school district. A lot of thought and hard work went into assuring our students are able to use everything at their disposal within their experience Program to correlate with and meet our standards and learning objectives."

This is a full-time position and will receive base salary plus commission. The company offers a competitive benefits package. This position reports to the general manager.

District facilities and master plan document viewed by board of education

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak School Board held a preliminary review of the district facilities assessment and preliminary master plan document at its Feb. 1 work ses-

The board met with Alley Poyner Macchietto Architecture representatives Rick Hauptman and Chandler Green. Hauptman said the firm took a deep dive into the district's facilities before sharing the information with the staff and community through a stakeholder engagement process.

Green said one of the factors under consideration was the need for continued growth and how to achieve that growth in each building.

"As we go through the process, we hone in on the elementary, middle school, and high school, and make sure we're taking into consideration what is typical and standard, and what the best and confirm the number of classrooms needed or the types of programs that could potentially be shifted," Green

Hauptman said information was presented to the staff and community, and participants were asked to place issues and items onto them that involved opportunities, weaknesses and needs.

"Opportunities were things that could be added to increase the value of the district. It also established the district's weaknesses and what could be done to enhance the weaknesses to increase the value of the district. As for needs, we asked them what they felt were the most immediate things the district needed.

Green said the workshops sought input on the early childhood center, Inman Elementary, and the Red Oak Junior/Senior High School. Some of practices are for the district. This is still the priorities noted for the early childa work in progress and will help inform hood center were learning spaces, general maintenance, and the need for more storage. Green said the need for storage was noted across every building in the

> At Inman, the focus groups noted a need for a cafeteria and multi purpose space, a stage and or auditorium space, general maintenance, storage, and restroom improvements.

> As for the junior/senior high school, the biggest topics were general maintenance improvements to the building, exterior parking and flow, and giving the outside of the building some identity. Storage and learning spaces were also a suggestion.

> Hauptman asked the board members present if any of the wants and needs of the focus groups was a surprise. Board President Bret Blackman said that none of the items were a surprise; the challenge for the board was prioritization of the needs identified.

A survey was sent out which was completed by 133 participants, and Green said the information received from the surveys would assist in prioritizing future projects for the district.

Hauptman and Green then showed the board some potential projects they could undertake, such as a dedicated safe entry point and potential building expansion into the playground area. At Inman, suggestions included converting the gym to a cafeteria/commons area, adding a smaller gym and a performance space, and adding more classroom space to the north side of the building. Renovations to the junior/ senior high school STEAM center and additional classroom space were also potential projects.

Inman Elementary, Hauptman said, was the building chiefly identified as a priority project.

"Part of that is because it's hurting for space, which was very evident in the staff feedback. That also may solve some spacing issues at the early childhood center, such as moving pre-K to Inman," Hauptman said.

Following the presentation, Lorenz made it clear that the district wasn't planning on undertaking a major project in the near future, it was simply determining the best path moving forward. Blackman agreed.

"Big bang projects like we just did are a once in 50 years type of thing. This is allowing us to see what needs to be done so we don't have to do a $30 million project the next time," Blackman said.

Hauptman said the next phase would be to compile a list of all the needs and determine the potential prices for each of the improvements so the district could make further plans and start prioritizing future projects.

A further, more extensive report will be presented to the board at a future

Hardwick said she and her mother will be codirecting the next show, "Always Patsy Cline," along with Tim and Tera Marsden. Also, Hardwick said she'll be open to do either a play or a musical as a solo endeavor in the future.

For first-time directors, Hardwick encouraged them to find a show that they connect with and bring it to the WPAC for consideration.

"We are totally open to people coming in and saying they want to try something. We want people to come in and learn and be more involved with everyone in the community," Hardwick commented.

Joining Hardwick in first-time directorial duties is Ciara Schierkolk, who recently was on stage for the recnt production of "Jekyll and Hyde." Like Hardwick, Schierkolk said she was also interested in dipping her toes in the water for directing.

"Don Torbett, who played Jekyll and Hyde in that show, said they were looking for a director for this show, and Kristi Hardwick and I were standing next to each other, and we both decided to try it at the same time," explained Schierkolk. "I'm doing another show that performs the same weekend, so that's why I'm taking the back seat in the assistant director position, since I knew I couldn't be here for the final rehearsal week."

Schierkolk added having Hardwick as support has made the first time experience easier to handle.

"I think it helps Kristi and I both feel a little bit better that we're not individually diving in head first. We're wading in together, and if either of us isn't sure about something, we can build each other up and work together in that aspect," Schierkolk said. "I've been learning on the fly. I have a lot of experience on stage from the actor's perspective, and I've been able to apply that and my acting instincts to the cast. Becca Jackson-York has helped me with some tutoring as well."

Schierkolk praised the cast, most of which she's worked with in the past, as well as Hardwick, and felt this has been a wonderful experience.

"They've done a lot of the hard work, and run with what we've told them, and have been there to run rehearsals and get them started each night," Schierkolk said.

Now that she's had the experience of working as an assistant director, Schierkolk said there would be a possibility she'll solo direct in the future.

'There's a possibility out there. I wouldn't want to bite off more than I can chew, but I have enjoyed this side of things, and we'll see where the future takes us," Schierkolk stated.

"Boeing Boeing" takes off at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 10-11, and at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 12. Tickets for adults are $30 and $20 for students. Call 623-3183 to reserve tickets.

LEGISLATIVE

Q/A period, Moore was questioned if he was going to include term limits in his proposed bill in the legislature, in addition to extending the term lengths. Moore said he wasn't going to include the prospect of term limits, as he felt that term limits would get rid of good people, rather than get rid of problem legislators that could be removed via election.

"This is my eighth year, and what's the magic number to set on? While they could get rid of people we don't like, they would also remove good legislators. After eight years, I feel I'm finally coming into my stride and effectiveness. I've got more bills in the legislature this year than in the entire seven years prior," advised Moore. "While I understand why people want term limits, I don't think it will be beneficial in the long run. Government is complicated, and it takes time to figure out how things work. I passed a bill last year that took me seven years to get passed. I've got another bill I've been working on for an additional seven years. So the question remains what an acceptable term limit would be."

Shipley and Moore were asked about their opinions regarding the Summit Carbon pipeline.

Moore admitted he had mixed feelings about the pipeline, believing it would be beneficial for the state to get rid of the carbon from ethanol plants, per federal law. However, he was adamantly against the use of eminent domain for private industry, unless they could make it so it was of significant benefit to the communities and people it would effect.

From a personal standpoint,

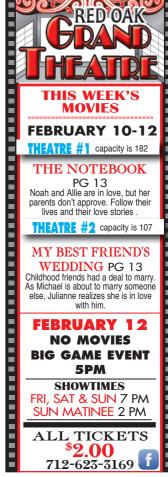

Moore said he was uncertain why private companies weren't looking for an alternate method for getting rid of carbon.

"We're the smartest nation on the planet, and we have the best people to think about ways to use YMCA. this carbon, why aren't we finding better solutions? That's where I am with that topic," Moore commented Shipley was also against the use of eminent domain, but said some counties are up to 80% or better of people signed up.

"You have a situation with two neighbors with hundreds of acres. One is owned by people that farm the land, and they don't want the pipeline. The other land was inherited to someone who lives out of state. They want the money. It will make for an interesting Thanksgiving," stated Shipley. Moore and Shipley also confirmed that the final decision on the project fell to the Iowa Utilities Board, and not the legislature.

The next legislative briefing is set for 8 a.m. March 4 at the Montgomery County Family risk/safety, outdoor exposure, and extra load due to department staffing shortages. In comparing hourly employee wages, disparities were also identified that warranted rectifying and realigning.

Silvius said to aid in employee retention, she was advocating for five immediate salary increases.

- Chris Day, wastewater superintendent level III, plant operator, and lab technician, $71,097 annually.
- Darren Paul, wastewater chief operator level II, $28.79 per hour.
- Ronald Tilton, cemetery assistant director and water department, $19.73 per hour.
- Bill Deitering, nuisance and animal control officer, $19.24 per
- Susie McDonald, utility billing clerk, $20.65 per hour.

After these were approved, Silvius suggested making further adjustments in the spring.

"When cost of living increases are determined and go into effect, I will request additional employee adjustments be considered, the cost of turnover, experience, and time training are among the reasons this recommendation is justfied," Silvius

Also, Silvius anticipated the hire of another wastewater operator position in the future.

Bills said he was surprised to see

"Everyone realizes the cost of living is going up, and we do have to address it, even though it may not make some people happy," Bills

The council unanimously approved a resolution increasing the how low Red Oak compared to other salaries as presented, with the wages cities of its size was, and agreed that to go into effect upon the resolu-
