Preparing for spring chicks: Tips and resources for success

From ISU Extension

As Easter approached and spring chicks began to appear at local farm stores, Iowa State University Extension and Outreach Youth Animal Science Education Specialist Amy Powell offered some tips and resources for those looking to try their hand at chicken rearing.

The first step to introducing poultry into a backyard farm is selecting a breed. Most backyard breeds are considered "dual purpose," which means they are raised for both meat and eggs.

"Most chicks available at farm stores are pretty hardy," explained Powell. "They're usually Rhode Island Reds, or a cross-breed like Black Star or Red Star."

Those looking to introduce several new chickens, or a special breed of chicken, can also use catalogs or an online service to order chicks. However, most ordering services require a minimum of six chicks in order to ship. Powell recommends using a local hatchery. "In my experience, it's less likely that a rooster might accidentally slip into the mix when you order from a hatchery rather than getting chicks at a farm store, but you will likely get healthy chicks either way," said Powell.

Housing is also an important consideration when building a flock. Chicks younger than six weeks require a brooding period, where they will need to be kept inside and warm. Powell recommends a 4-H publication from the University of Tennessee Extension, available at <https://wilson.tennessee.edu/wp-content/uploads/sites/83/2020/10/bp915-Growing-Blue-Ribbon-Pullets.pdf>, which addresses specific temperatures for brooding based on the chicks' age and answers other common questions about the process.

A chicken coop should also be safe from predators, including neighborhood cats and dogs. "Anything will eat a chicken, including dogs and cats, so predator awareness is essential," warned Powell.

While chicks generally tend to be healthy, in order to keep both people and poultry safe, it is important to maintain hygienic practices to keep them that way. It is important to have clean clothes, boots and hands around poultry to prevent illness.

"One thing to keep in mind is promoting good biosecurity, since chickens can carry salmonella," said Powell. "It is also important to be aware of highly pathogenic avian influenza, or HPAI, since there has been an increase in detections lately."

Poultry owners are encouraged to consult extension resources outlining good biosecurity practices and answering questions about HPAI.

Chicks and adult chickens also will need access to food and water. Chicken feed sold at farm stores is a great option, as it has been specifically formulated to meet a chicken's needs at various stages of growth. Chicks under six weeks should be given starter feed, which has a higher level of protein to promote healthy growth.

After six weeks, chicks being raised for meat should be given a finisher diet until they are processed, while those being raised as layers or for breeding purposes should be given a grower diet. At 20 weeks, or after hens begin laying, hens should be switched to a layer diet.

Finally, it is important to check local restrictions before bringing home chickens. In many places, there are no restrictions on backyard chickens so long as they are being held in safe, sanitary housing and being kept reasonably quiet and healthy. However, different areas may have different restrictions.

Raising chickens is a fun and educational way to engage with agriculture and food production, especially for children. Powell recommends that children interested in raising poultry get involved with 4-H, where they can learn more about livestock and enter competitions. A short course offering advice on getting started with chickens is also available through the Iowa State University Extension and Outreach Extension Store. Keeping some simple tips in mind can make chicken ownership a rewarding experience.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN...?

5 Years Ago	10 Years Ago	25 Years Ago	50 Years Ago
Three families bequeathed a total of $1.5 million to the Montgomery County Family YMCA. The Y received $800,000 from the Charles and Norma Wilson Foundation, $573,000 from the Helen Murphy Estate, and $109,000 from the Rod and Jean Farmer estate. The majority of the new funding was earmarked for a permanent endowment of which only the principal interest can be spent. YMCA Board president Mike Olson said it was humbling to receive such massive financial support.	Janneese Ranney and Sarah Clark were sharing their extreme couponing secrets. The pair often were able to leave stores with hundreds of dollars in merchandise while paying only $10 due to their many coupons. One of the secrets, Ranney said, was concentrating on detergent and beauty supplies, and using coupons that were more than the items themselves, allowing for a credit to buy other items. Patronizing a store with a price match policy also helped.	Red Oak native Tim Marsden was preparing to do double duty in the Dana College production of “Guys and Dolls.” Marsden was prepping to play the leading role of Sky Masterson, a role played by Marlon Brando in the Hollywood film. Additionally, Marsden was also directing the production for Dana College. Matt Hauflle, also of Red Oak, was cast as the supporting role of Nicely-Nicely Johnson.	Twelve local people, under the laws of Iowa, formed Emerson Builders, Inc., to create more housing and promote general development for the Emerson community. The group purchased the Ray Huntsman block in the north central part of the town, consisting of 12 lots, and planned to begin construction on a house. The remaining lots would also be put up for sale with housing expected to be placed on them.
The Southwest Valley Timberwolves golf team edged the Red Oak Tigers by one point at the Dale Erickson Memorial Tournament in Anita. The boys were led by Avery Kwirant, who shot 89. Justin Bernard of Red Oak got medalist honors.	The Villisca Blue Jays girls track and field team won the team title at the East Union Girls Invitational. The total team score was 174 points, nearly 100 more than Central Decatur. Heather Means won three individual titles, in the 800, the 1,500, and the 3,000 meter races.	The 37th inductee to the Red Oak High School Sports Hall of Fame was Mike Godbout, a star hurdler as a prep and still a standout in the event. This is Godbout's first year of eligibility. Godbout was a three-sport letterman for Red Oak.	In a triangular track meet, the Essex Trojans won with 65 points to 49 points for Malvern and 38 for Farragut. John Carlson won the shot put competition, for Essex, as well as the discus throw.
		A 1996 Buick Regal was selling for $11,988 at Hawkeye Ford Mercury.	A Dynamark riding lawn mower was on sale for $497 at Martin & Sons in Red Oak.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Red Oak named a Tree City USA

Every year the Urban Forestry Awards luncheon recognizes cities, college campuses and utilities that demonstrate a variety of dedication to the importance of trees in their respective communities.

Awards were presented April 12 at the FFA Enrichment Center in Ankeny, on behalf of the Arbor Day Foundation and the Iowa Department of Natural Resources.

Several local communities were recipients of the Tree City USA award. Among the area communities receiving the award were Red Oak, Glenwood, Clarinda, and Atlantic.

To qualify for the Tree City USA award, a city must have either a city forester or an active city tree board, have a tree ordinance, spend at least $2 per capita annually for its community forestry program, and have a tree planting and maintenance plan.

Clarinda was also the recipient of a Tree City USA Growth award. To qualify for the Tree City USA Growth award, cities must provide education and public relations, partnerships, planning and management, and tree planting and maintenance in their community.

2022 Iowa State Fair Way We Live Award entries now open

The Iowa State Fair, Pioneer and media sponsors Iowa Farmer Today and WHO radio The Big Show are seeking entries for the 2022 Way We Live Award.

The Way We Live Award, in its 14th year of recognizing outstanding farm families, will be awarded to six Iowa families who exemplify hard working farm values and a love for the occupation of farming. So far, the Way We Live Award has been given to 76 well-deserving Iowa families.

To nominate your family or someone you know, submit an entry form that describes how living on a farm and choosing the occupation of farming has shaped the family's life. All entries must include a family picture that illustrates the family's commitment to their farming operation. Entry forms can be printed or filled out on the Iowa State Fair website: iowastatefair.org/participate/the-way-we-live-award/. All entries must be postmarked or submitted by May 15.

Winners will receive a prize package including $250 cash, fair admission, a parking pass, food vouchers, a one-night stay courtesy of the Holiday Inn Downtown Mercy Campus and recognition on the Anne and Bill Riley Stage and in the Paul R. Knapp Animal Learning Center during the Iowa State Fair, Aug. 11-21, 2022.

Eligible families must be residents of Iowa and the farming operation can be centered around any agricultural commodity. Families may be nominated by a member of the family or by others.

Nominations must be submitted online at iowastatefair.org or postmarked by May 15, and sent to: Iowa State Fair, Emily Wynn, PO Box 57130, Des Moines, Iowa 50317-0003, or e-mail all materials to ewynn@iowastatefair.org

Nominations now open to recognize 2022 conservation farmer of the year

Nominations are now being sought to recognize the 2022 Iowa Conservation Farmer of the Year.

Now in its 70th year, this prestigious honor has been awarded to celebrate conservation progress and Iowa farmers who are committed to exceptional environmental stewardship and conservation efforts.

The statewide and regional awards, co-sponsored by the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship (IDALS) and the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation (IFBF), honor Iowa farmers who have distinguished track records of commitment to soil conservation and water quality improvement efforts.

The grand prize winner will receive the use of a new John Deere 6E utility tractor for one year. Last year's Iowa Conservation Farmer of the Year award winner, Cedar County farmers Ken Fawcett and his nephew, Kent Stewart, were recognized for embracing innovative conservation practices to take on the challenge of improving Iowa's soil health and water quality while sharing their experiences and insight with fellow farmers.

To nominate a farmer for the award, visit cdiowa.org/awards for a short form summarizing the nominee's conservation efforts and commitment to improving soil. Nominations are due May 13 to the local Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) office.

One nominee will be selected by each of Iowa's 99 county SWCD offices. These individuals will be considered for regional conservation awards. Nine regional award winners will compete for the title of "Iowa's Conservation Farmer of the Year."

The winner will be announced during the Iowa State Fair and will receive the keys to their tractor during the Conservation Districts of Iowa annual meeting, Sept. 23-24, in Ames.
