Fundraising starts for 'dedicated' animal shelter

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The community of Red Oak and the surrounding area has the possibility of reopening a dedicated community animal shelter if fundraising goals are met.

Red Oak did have a dedicated animal shelter until it was sold five years ago. Jan Black, who currently coordinates any animal rescue efforts in the county, said there were several reasons why that other shelter ended up being sold.

"For one thing, it was too big. We also were lacking in community support and lacking in volunteer support and financial support, unfortunately. I've been handling animal rescue since 2000, and have not received any money from the City of Red Oak or Montgomery County," said Black.

Black added that when the shelter was in operation, she financed much of the building operations, along with grants, donations, and

"I'm not independently wealthy, and it ended up being a decision I had to make. I had intentions at that time of quitting altogether, but I was approached by the Animal Rescue League in Des Moines to help oversee a program through the Clarinda Prison that trains rescue dogs so they can be adopted. I stepped in and assisted with that, and on a local level, I've been doing whatever animal rescue I can, and board dogs through vet clinics and other appropriate organizations," Black explained.

According to Black, she has now reached the point where she is looking at ceasing her personal animal rescue efforts in Red Oak and surrounding communities.

"I'm 70 now, and this takes a lot of personal time and money to coordinate this. While I do get some donations from people to help out, the donations just aren't enough to cover all of my outof-pocket expenses. I don't know the exact amount of money I've spent, but it's thousands and thousands of dollars. I could spend $2,000 per month in vet bills alone. So if nothing is done, the community is going to go back to the year 2000, when we had no animal rescue operations at all," Black commented.

Black said she still plans on assisting with the Clarinda prison animal program and will still continue to assist with low-cost spay and neuter clinics, but she will be stepping back from everything

Red Oak Mayor Shawnna Silvius said they have a short window to bring back a dedicated animal shelter to Red Oak that would provide animal rescue services to the area once Black ceases her

"We have two ladies who have recently moved to Red Oak, Tracy Hill and her mother, Dixie Strange. They operated a shelter in Mount Ayr, and they have years of experience, and Tracy was a vet tech for 12 years. They are here and ready to open a shelter, and there is an ideal building here for them that is currently for sale, that they would love to purchase and open up a shelter for us," Silvius

The building is in a location where it would not have any nuisance noise concerns, and also has opportunities for expansion. To purchase the building, make renovations to turn it into a shelter, and have enough funding to operate it and have some paid staff, the amount of funds needed to be raised through grants and donations is estimated at around $300,000. If they meet those fundraising goals and can open, Hill said they have a number of ideas to serve not only as an animal rescuer operation, but also provide other benefits to the community.

"We like to have the track team come and take the dogs out for a run when they're at practice. Also students at a variety of schools can't graduate until they give 40 hours of community service to a non-profit, so those students could come to us and collect those hours. We also liked to hold doggie furlough days, so people who are interested in a dog but aren't sure they are ready for one, can essentially check out a dog, and keep it for a few days to see if it's something they're ready for. There are a lot of opportunities this would create that would have a lasting benefit to the community,"

Right now, the City of Red Oak is picking up dogs on a very limited basis and aren't picking up stray cats at all. Hill said another opportunity they'd like to be considered would be to have a contract with the city to pick up stray animals as necessary. Hill is also looking to meet with the Red Oak City Council and Montgomery County Board of Supervisors to consider options for any potential partnerships.

Silvius said they had a recent meeting with around 18 people in attendance to discuss the possibility of a shelter, and everyone who attended was in agreement that there was a community need, and there were others who agreed but were unable to attend. She encouraged anyone interested to attend the June 6 council meeting at 5:30 to hear Hill's presentation, then stay for the community conversation with the former group following the council meeting

Black was in agreement that there was a dire necessity for the community to have a dedicated animal shelter. As part of her personal rescue efforts, she was the go-to person for law enforcement and the nuisance officer.

"Some days, I can get three or four calls a day, and while my number was shared with those agencies, it also was shared around the community which led to more calls. While I had no issue with giving my number out, I don't do animal control. I'm 70 years old now, and I'm just not at the point where I'm physically able to go down and chase dogs. I also get a lot of calls from people with

Postmaster warns of counterfeit stamps

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak Post Office is warning of a recent scam that has targeted a number of people in the area.

Postmaster Michelle Dixon, with the Red Oak Post Office, said that they have seen a recent influx of mail bearing counterfeit stamps, which are usually purchased at an up to 50% discount online. Dixon said at that level of discount, those stamps are likely bogus.

"The post office never offers a discount that large, as our stamp prices are fixed. Recently, we've seen a number of graduation cards that had counterfeit stamps on them, and unfortunately, when we find a counterfeit stamp, those cards end up as return to sender," Dixon explained.

The number of counterfeit stamps being sold through online platforms has escalated, and with rising prices affecting everyone in the county, it's natural for people to look for discounts.

Pool will open June 1 with limited hours

Nick Johansen

The Red Oak Express

The Red Oak Municipal Pool will open as scheduled on June 1, but patrons can expect limits on weekend availability for the time being.

The Red Oak Park and Tree Board held a special meeting on May 26 to discuss the pool schedule. Park Superintendent Adam VanDerVliet advised the board they currently have eight lifeguards after two backed out, three assistant managers, and two attendants.

"Of the eight guards, two of them can only work Mondays through Fridays, so June 1-3, we have six guards the first two days, and every weekend through June 12, we only have three guards available on the weekends. We need coverage of one guard for every 30 patrons," VanDerVliet said.

VanDerVliet added that he personally wouldn't open the pool with three guards, as there would be no rotation, and the lifeguards would get burned out within the first couple of weeks from opening. Also, VanDerVliet said with six guards, only half the pool would be available to open, and it would take a total of 10 guards to open the pool entirely, with five guards present and

Boeye praised for interim IT assistance, search continues for Scott's permanent replacement

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

The search for a new IT director to oversee the county's infrastructure is ongoing.

The Montgomery County Board of Supervisors discussed the efforts to find a replacement for Jim Scott, who resigned

Supervisor Randy Cooper said he had been in contact with Red Oak superintendent Ron Lorenz and requested he pass on the name of any prospective students who may be a good fit.

Supervisor Charla Schmid said she was contacted by a member of the community whose son applied for the job before Scott was hired, and she urged them to pursue

"I told him to have his son fill out another application and resume and that we would take a look at it," Schmid said.

Supervisor Mike Olson also advised he's been contacted about the position and told them to apply online or through the auditor's

"We're getting the word out pretty well, I feel, it's just a matter of finding someone who wants to take a position like this," said

Supervisor Donna Robinson asked how frequently interim director Beau Boeye was on-site, or if he was just on-call. County Auditor Stephanie Burke said Beau was at the courthouse in the mornings on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

"He's very responsive to emails when we contact him at the help desk, and the staff is continuing to use the help desk as well. His assistance has been very beneficial," Burke

Supervisors Chair Mark Peterson said it was a huge benefit to the county having Boeye's involvement on an interim basis.

"I wouldn't want to even think about this situation without having Beau involved, and he's been very willing to work with us, so that's been great," Peterson stated.

Also, Peterson said there was an ease in getting Boeye back into the position of IT director on an interim basis.

"It provides us IT security, and since he was involved once before, he could just step right back in. It's troublesome to have to go through this again, but since we were just recently through this before Jim Scott was hired, we have a little better feel for what we need to do now," Peterson commented.

However, despite the extensive advertising efforts taken by the county, Burke advised at the May 24 meeting that they had no new applications beyond the first one she'd earmarked for review by the supervisors. Peterson admitted the news was prob-

"On the one hand, there's some relief that we've gotten some applications, and have one strong candidate, but we've provided a lot of advertising saturation, and I think we're out there about as far as we can be. There's only so much we can do at this time," Peterson explained.

No, she had never heard of Mrs. Olson or the Swedish water tower coffee pot.

Not included in the column was the fact that she asked for a copy. I clipped The Express and mailed it to her. About two weeks later came a manilla The next day came an email with a time and envelope from North Vancouver containing a card and note and a glossy, autographed photo.

> I framed the picture and hung it in my office next to two others. One is of Rita Moreno, who share a table, dinner and an awkward conversation in a Des Moines hotel ballroom in 1989.

The third glamor photo is of Cindy Seastrom, a farm wife from Coon Rapids. I became acquainted competing for, and eventually winning, the title of news@redoakexpress.com.

The three were on my wall until recently when swear nor use much hot sauce, but learned quickly. wife, probably in a jealous snit, presented me with When asked about lemon bars, giant pumpkins or a beautifully matted and framed print of "Downing whatever the script asked, her job was to hold up a the Nigh Leader." The painting, by Remington, depicts a war party of American Indians attacking a stage and is, I believe, one of his best works.

Wife said it would look much better in the really use hot sauce? Some. When she signed the office of a "man" than pin-ups of elderly ladies. This "man" said "yes dear." My golden girls went to storage.

The incident caused me to remember that I'd saved the card, which included a phone number and Hamilton's invitation to call again if I had additional questions. 30-day international calling isn't all that expensive, and I had additional questions. Did she still think highly of Frank's? Lace her cocoa with the stuff? Had any other recent adventures that would give a washed-up free-lancer something to prop up a struggling column?

The price of the call got me a recording saying won an Academy Award for "West Side Story. A the number was no longer available. # Increasing the nation's baby formula supply

Parents and childcare providers from across Iowa's Third Congressional District have told me about the devastating impacts the nationwide shortage of infant formula is having right here in

Following Abbott Nutrition closing a plant due to safety issues, the out-of-stock rate for infant formula in Iowa is more than 50% and has left parents spending hours trying to hunt down formula. As a mother of two, I know that nothing comes before your kids' well-being, and I deeply understand the fear and frustration of parents who are wondering if they'll be able to find the formula their kids

This is unacceptable, so I have been hard at work shoring up the nation's domestic supply chain to help ensure formula is put back on shelves as soon as possible, including writing to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and President

I recently supported and then voted with a bipartisan majority of my colleagues in Congress for the Access to Baby Formula Act, which will give the U.S. Department of Agriculture flexibility to make sure families who depend on the Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program to help afford formula can continue to purchase safe infant formula during a supply chain disruption or public health emergency. WIC recipients account for nearly half of all formula sales across the country. I am pleased that the Senate acted quickly to pass this legislation, and I look forward to it quickly becoming law.

I also voted for the Infant Formula Supplemental Appropriations Act to provide $28 million in emergency funding to the FDA to help address the current shortage, prevent future shortages, and keep fraudulent products from reaching store shelves.

President Biden has also invoked the Defense Production Act to ensure infant formula producers have the resources they need to increase supply, and Operation Fly Formula will use Department of Defense aircraft to accelerate importation of infant formula.

These actions will help us get formula in the hands of families and get the shelves stocked again. But we need to look at long-term solutions so no family ever has to go through this again, and I am continuing to work to address the practices and fix the breakdowns that got us to this point.

I also know gas prices are a huge burden on Iowa families right now, including my own. These high prices are being driven by big oil companies, including four of the largest that collectively made $27 billion in profits during the first quarter of this year, after making almost $71 billion in 2021.

These companies are gouging Iowans and manipulating the market by producing less than they should to keep prices and their profits high.

It's not fair to hard-working Iowans, and I am fighting to put an end to these practices.

That's why I voted for the Consumer Fuel Price Gouging Prevention Act to enable the President to issue an Energy Emergency Proclamation to make it unlawful to excessively increase gas and home energy prices.

It also gives the Federal Trade Commission power to issue penalties and empower states to go after price gouging.

This is the first-ever federal law against price gouging and will help lower costs for Iowans by ending money-grabbing tactics, penalizing market manipulators, and providing transparency to the secretive oil and gas market.

I will always stand up for hard working lowans and protect them from the largest oil companies in the world and continue to look for more ways to bring down gas prices including by supporting domestic and homegrown biofuels.

While I continue my work to shore up our nation's supply chains and reduce prices for Iowa families, I have also introduced new pieces of legislation that I am looking forward to seeing become law.

This legislation focuses on bolstering the pipeline of service-oriented individuals to ensure agencies have the resources they need to keep our communities safe, and helps recruit individuals who haven't traditionally been involved in law enforcement.

I also passed my Student Veteran Work Study Modernization Act through the House, which would ensure veterans who are enrolled in higher education courses part-time will be able to take advantage of VA Work Study programs.

That bill means a lot to me because I believe every veteran who has served our country deserves access to the benefits they've earned.

Letters to the Editor The Red Oak Express supports healthy community discourse and encourages readers to submit a letter to the editor. Letters must be signed and include a phone number for verification purposes. They can be submitted by Letters should be concise and centered on a single topic. All letters are subject to editing for length, taste, accuracy, liability, or other reasons. Well followers, it's been a month since my last S-5127 and after years of work on the Bottle Bill newsletter. Reason being we have been waiting on the Senate to negotiate on budget issues and give up on their strong arm tactics to try to get student scholarships for students to go to private from the public school on the taxpayers dollar. That said this week moves us to Sine Die (end of session).

On Monday morning the Senate passed HF 2081 46-0 after sitting on it as a negotiating factor since the House passed it 94-0 back on February 28. This bill eliminates the program ending exam which all teacher practitioner prep students had to pass before gaining licensure. The exam acted as a barrier for certain students, and this was no indicator of a students' ability to become a successful teacher. This has been a major point of emphasis for me during my 7 years in the legislature. To see it go to the Governor for her signature is extremely exciting for me as well as it is for hundreds of teacher prep students.

Having passed HF2497 back in March, the Senate sent it back to us with a 2 year moratorium on the expansion or building of new casinos in Iowa to check the impact of over saturation in the state. HF2497 was sent to the Governor with a vote of 60-23.

The Senate concurred with House Amendment

I have thought several days about how to

sent it to the Governor! Senate file 2378 is not a perfect bill but does make significant changes that will continue to make it a success. This legislation raises the handling fee for redemption centers from 1 to 3 cents, it allows for retailers 3 exemptions to opt out, it increases enforcement by placing it under the Attorney Generals Office, and offers distributors a 1 cent credit against their taxes for each container they handle which gives the legislature an accounting of unredeemed containers and considerable legislative oversight.

We finally reached agreement on House File 2130 which will allow ATV/UTVs to use county highways as a part of a state wide law. Currently counties have to designate county highways for use of ATV/UTVs. The bill would prohibit counties from passing ordinances or resolutions against the use of ATV/UTVs on county highways. This bill was amended to include that ATV riders must be 18 years or older and have liability coverage. The ATV/UTV must also have headlights, taillights, turn signals, and mirrors

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Baker comments on mass shooting in Texas

To the Editor:

respond to the latest mass shooting in Texas of innocent children and teachers. I want you to understand that I am a gun owner and hunter. I have spent forty years working in early childhood education first with twenty years on a school board then on the board of early childhood education dollars for Montgomery Co. These are both fully unpaid voluntary positions and I gain nothing except trying to improve our children's school experience. When I read that the Iowa Legislature passed a bill one or two days prior to the slaughter of children, a bill that would allow hunters to use military style weapons to hunt deer in a special season to reduce the deer population, I was shocked but not surprised. Why wouldn't they try to promote a weapon made to kill humans to be used in hunting so they can justify private ownership. My rural residence has already been peppered with buckshot during bird season and my father's wife was hit with buckshot while walking around my son's acreage. What does the legislature think will happen with weapons capable of traveling two and a half miles. They have spent the entire session denigrating teachers and the educational system and this was the best they could do. The only saving grace to this session was when the Senate was rebuked by the house and did not allow public dollars to be used in private education. This only happened due to a concerted effort by local superintendents and teachers who recognized the danger to public education.

Hart book signing in Stanton

Kevin Hart, a native of Stanton, gave a presentation and held a book signing at the Stanton Public Library on Wednesday, May 25. Hart's book, Don't Throw Rocks, is about the things his father tried to teach him. His presentation included some stories from his youth, which many in the audience remembered as well, and some stories from his young adulthood. Hart brought a compass to the presentation, which he gave his father in gratitude of guiding him in the right direction. Years later, his daughter aifted him with a compass as well. The stories in the book run the gauntlet of emotions, and Hart's presentation did as well. (Charm Carpenter/The Red Oak Express)

Federal funding approved for county bridge project

Nick Johansen The Red Oak Express

A further hurdle has been crossed by Montgomery County in seeking federal funds for a bridge project.

In April, The Montgomery County Board of Supervisors has issued its support for potential federal funding for work on the 250th Street bridge in the Grant Township, as U.S. Rep. Cindy Axne's office informed the county she was eligible to submit up to 15 potential projects to the Budget Appropriations Committee in the U.S. Congress.

At the supervisors meeting May 24, assistant to the engineer Barry Byers said he had received an update on the status of the project from Axne's

"We received an email that stated the application for funding we had turned in had been forwarded on to the appropriations committee for review and possible inclusion in the fiscal year 2023 funding bill," Byers said.

Supervisor Donna Robinson asked if there was anyone that the supervisors themselves could contact to further solidify the request and make it more likely for approval.

Supervisors Chair Mark Peterson felt that the voters from Axne's own district would have as much weight as themselves. Byers said the community was represented in their request.

"We had seven letters of support from community members, and all of those letters were sent along with the letter the supervisors issued in support of the funding," commented Byers.

Byers also informed the supervisors that the road maintenance crews were going to move to a different schedule for the summer months.

"The crews are going to be switching to four 10 hour days throughout the season. They will operate Monday through Thursday, for the first month or so, and then if we run into any trouble with not having people available on Fridays, we'll stagger the shifts around.

Byers said the plan was to implement the schedule on the first week after Memorial Day and run the new schedule until Labor Day. Byers also stressed it was for the road maintenance crews only, and the office staff would still work normal Monday-Friday hours.

"The start time will be at 6 a.m., currently the crews start at 7 a.m., and the end of the shift will be at 4:30 p.m., "commented Byers.

As for road maintenance, Byers said the crews have been hauling rock and prepping roads for the first application of dust control. They've also started roadside mowing.

Robinson also asked Byers if the road crews had particular maps for this year's rock haul, or if it was random. Byers said the majority of the rock will be used for spot rocking roads earmarked for

As for other maintenance, Byers said each grader operator submitted a map with markups on it indicating which roads they felt needed touched up by rock, and the secondary roads department uses those maps for bigger rocking projects.

Peterson brothers committed to county conservation

Conservation District

When Carol Peterson passed, he left his boys Mike, Darwin, Carl, and Phillip quite a challenge. Carol had 373 acres: a high-quality hill farm that has always been treated with a crop rotation of hay and graded broad based terraces to waterways.

While effective, the practices weren't suitable to larger modern farming equipment. In the years surrounding Carol's passing, renters attempted to modify the practices but were not effective.

Soon after Carol's death, the boys decided to make a pact to invest every dollar back into the farm for conservation. Carl met with the Montgomery Soil and Water Conservation District

Submitted by Montgomery County Soil & Water and a plan was formed to treat the entire 373 acres.

Every year since 2015 the Peterson brothers, with the help of contractors, Brian and Clayton Gay, have chipped away, planting hay to set aside land for the summer to build terraces. To date the brothers have installed 33,550 feet of terrace, all without cost share. And on top of all their terrace building and hay rotations, they have adopted

Carl has said many times that the land needs rest, and grass and hay is a good way to do it, especially if it gives you more time to build terraces.

When the project started, they told us they just hoped to be alive to see the project completed; only a couple summers and 12,750 feet left, fellas.

POOL

another five guards available for rotation.

"Looking at the schedule, at this point, I would feel comfortable with opening the north half of the pool, with the deep end closed, Mondays through Fridays until we can get more lifeguards. I feel the north end of the pool will serve more people than the south end, and we had to do something similar to this last year, when we were short on staff, and this proposal is only temporary until we can add more lifeguard staff," commented VanDerVliet.

Additionally, all lifeguards have to be Red Cross certified through the Montgomery County YMCA. Ultimately, VanDerVliet said for the pool to be open every day, throughout the season, they would need 30 guards in total.

The Park Board approved a temporary schedule of Monday through Friday pool hours through June 12.

The board then discussed a change in incentives. Currently, suits for all the lifeguards are paid for, and if a lifeguard returns for a second year to work at the pool, their certification class, at a cost of $200, is paid for.

Board member Cliff Owen suggested that the board change the incentive to pay for the certification class for first year lifeguards, rather than to wait to pay for returning lifeguards.

The board agreed to a voucher, to be presented to the Montgomery County YMCA, that they would pay for the certification class upon the successful completion of the course, and a $50 referral bonus will be paid to anyone who recruits a lifeguard.

some sort of an animal rescue, or it's going to commit to not having one. I just can't personally continue at my age, and my family is ready for me to be a part of the family. This is the right thing to do. If they want this service, one person can't do it by themselves.'

Dave Doty is another resident who felt there is a need for an animal shelter, and said one benefit of a dedicated shelter would be for doing trap-neuterrelease programs for community cats: those in the community that have no owners or that live outdoors.

"There's an estimated 3,000 community cats, and probably more, and while they are a benefit to communities, there has to be a population control put in place, because those numbers will only grow exponentially if they're left unchecked," said Doty. "They're not going to be organizing the financial details wiped out, they're just going to be healthier."

As they continue fundraising efforts, Silvius said they are still looking for opportunities to meet with the public and get more ideas.

"We're looking for volunteers, and we're looking for people who want to come together with us, as a group, and figure this out," stated Silvius.

Fundraising efforts are already underway, and an account has been set up at Great Western Bank, under Animal Alliance Rescue. Anyone with further questions about the proposed shelter plan can contact Hill at 515-520-7748. Hill said there is only a certain amount of time available to raise enough funds to bring the shelter proposal to fruition.

"We'd need to reach the fundraising goal, or at least be well on the path to that goal, within 60 to 90 days in order to make this plan come to fruition," stated Hill. "Other than that, I could do some of the things Jan Black has been doing, but I can't take in any dogs without a building to shelter them in."

Hill and Strange also plan on to give a presentation about their shelter proposal at the Red Oak City Council meeting June 6. June 11, Doty is going to DJ at the farmers market, and any funds donated to him will be given to help purchase the building for the proposed animal
